MAKING WAVES SINCE
1935

Jungle Queen Riverboat Cruises was started in 1935, consisting of a few small boats that gave sightseeing tours through the "Venice of America," Fort Lauderdale's New River. Earl Faber, a former vaudevillian, took over in 1958 and created a vaudeville show and it developed and has stayed popular, and colorful for many years with its unique format.

Shortly thereafter, Earl's son Jerry took over, and remained at the helm until 2014, when the third generation of Faber's took over Jungle Queen and continues to run the business today.
